Marico Howe, Money Follows the Person Program Director, has thirteen years experience in business systems, electronic commerce, and project management. She received a Bachelor of Science in Computer Science from Bowie State University in Bowie, Maryland. After which, she received her Master of Science in Computer Science from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland. Marico worked for the Johns Hopkins University/ Applied Physics Laboratory for four years as a Software Engineer and a Project Manager. Additionally, she worked for the General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C. for two years. She returned home a few years back with her family to Arkansas where they enjoy all the benefits the “Natural State” has to offer.

As a part of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005, the Money Follows the Person (MFP) Rebalancing Demonstration Program was intended to provide support for States in rebalancing their long-term care systems. This initiative was designed to increase consumer direction through the use of Home and Community Based Services (HCBS) and decrease the use of institutional services. Initially, the MFP Program authorized up to $1.75 billion in Federal funds through fiscal year (FY) 2011. However, in 2010, it was extended through September 30, 2016, with additional appropriation of $450 million for each FY 2012-2016, which brought the total additional funding to $2.25 billion.

Through the MFP Program, Arkansas serves four populations: the elderly (65 years or older), persons with physical and developmental disabilities and adults with mental illness. To date, MFP has transitioned 195 participants. The demonstration services include, but are not limited to, Community Transition Services, Goods and Services, Therapeutic Interventions, Intense Transitional Management, clothing, In Home Monitoring Technology, Telemedicine, Supported Living, and 24-Hour Attendant Care. Two new categories, Emergency Fund and Dental were recently approved by Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

Complimentary Lunch

The Arkansas Advocates for Nursing Home Residents (AANHR) will celebrate their eighth annual Residents’ Rights Rally at the State Capitol on October tenth. The annual rally is to acknowledge the rights of nursing home residents. We know that when a person can no longer be responsible for their own care, many go to a long-term care setting.

I am happy to say that we are expecting a great turnout! Our keynote speaker will be the Arkansas State Attorney General, Dustin McDaniel. Other featured speakers are: Dr. David Montague, Director of UALR Senior Justice Center; Maria Diaz, AARP State Director; Kathie Gately, Arkansas State Ombudsman; and, Dr. Gerald Parker Sr., Pilgrim Progress Missionary Baptist Church. The honorable Governor Mike Beebe signed a proclamation recognizing this special event.

AANHR’s goal as an organization is to “protect and improve the quality of care and life for nursing home residents in Arkansas.” We acknowledge the importance of these rights guaranteed by the Federal Nursing Home Reform Act of 1987. These rights must not be diminished!

Information pertaining to protecting the rights of Arkansas nursing home residents will be handed out to every person in attendance. For more information about residents’ rights visit www.aanhr.org.

DEAR ABBY: You often advise readers who have the time to reach out and volunteer. There’s a little-known program in every state that was mandated by a 1978 amendment to the “Older Americans Act.” It’s the Long Term Care Ombudsman Program. Its goal is to help assure that long-term care facility residents live harmoniously and with dignity, feeling free to voice complaints or concerns without reprisal.

There’s a need nationwide for volunteers to make this program work. The ultimate goal is to have one volunteer in each nursing home. After training is completed, volunteers spend eight to 16 hours a month visiting their assigned nursing homes. They talk with the residents and observe conditions. If there’s a complaint, they take it to their regional ombudsman for resolution.

Once residents get to know and trust you, they will share wonderful life stories. Some of them have no one to talk to, no visitors or family. A volunteer ombudsman is the voice for those who have none, and helps to make each community a better place to live for all its residents.

The nursing homes like to have volunteer ombudsmen visit their facilities because they want to provide the best care possible for their residents. -- JILL IN VAN BUREN, Arkansas.

DEAR JILL: Forgive me if this seems cynical, but some do and some don’t -- which is exactly why it’s so important that there are trained observers willing to regularly visit nursing home patients to ensure they are properly cared for. Readers, this is important work. If you are interested in volunteering, contact your local social services agency, Department of Aging or search online for the word “ombudsman” and the state in which you reside.

Making A Difference

By Rick Bolton, CVO

Companionship, dignity, freedom from boredom, despair, and loneliness... these are some of the thoughts that flow through my mind as I walk the halls of a local nursing home as a Certified Volunteer Ombudsman (CVO).

Ombudsman is an antiquated term for a go-between agent for the state of Arkansas and a nursing home resident. The term “ombudsman” came from Sweden when they transferred from a monarchy to a democracy and found they needed an arbitrator to communicate between the elites and the uneducated citizens. When the Older Americans Acts passed over thirty years ago problems arose with quality of care and thus the Ombudsman program was birthed in the United States. Put simply, I am a volunteer visitor, an advocate for nursing home residents. Note that I use the term “residents” instead of “patients” because a nursing home is their home.

It is difficult to explain the emotions I feel when I walk into a residence home and I spot a big smile and the resident sometimes remembers my name. I even get some hugs! They have some incredible stories to tell even though I have heard them before. Some residents have no visitors despite their families living in the same town. Most people think nursing homes are full of elderly folks. This is not necessarily so. Some residents are younger than me but have debilitating illnesses such as multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, stroke, heart ailments and broken bones. Some receive therapy while others are made as comfortable as possible.

Being an ombudsman is not for the faint of heart. Watching the aging process takes its toll. The sorrows sometimes outweigh the joys but the need is tremendous. We are asked to spend two to four hours per week visiting which is spread pretty thin when you consider there are seventy-five to one hundred residents to visit.

Volunteer Ombudsman certification is simple and straightforward with rules defining what we can and cannot do. We don’t discuss religion, politics, finances, or contact family members. (However, family members can contact us.) We also do not interfere with medications or treatments. In many cases, we do not know the reasons they live in a facility due to residents’ privacy rights. However, there is a list of conditions we can monitor including cleanliness, odors, hygiene, conditions, and complaints. I usually bring books and magazines to read and two ears to listen to their concerns and, if possible, help solve any problems, always remembering there are two sides to every story.

If you would like to be part of this wonderful program contact your local Arkansas Agency on Aging and you too can make a difference to our senior, infirm citizens in facilities across our state.
