State Long-term Care Ombudsman to be AANHR's Speaker on Monday, September 13

Kathie J. Gately, BSW, graduated from Arkansas State University in May of 1990 where she obtained an undergraduate degree in Social Work. She relocated to Little Rock in 1990 where her oldest son was attending the Arkansas School for the Deaf. Since 1985, her career has involved working for the elderly and disabled. Serving as the Arkansas State Long-term Care Ombudsman, Kathie is committed to supporting the mission of the Ombudsman Program along with expanding the Volunteer Ombudsman Program. She will discuss the roll of Ombudsmen and why they are an important link in getting good care for nursing home residents.

From the President's Desk

Nancy Allison

While reading the August issue of "Aging Arkansas" I was stunned at facts in an ad purchased by Arkansas Health Care Association. This is the organization representing most of the nursing homes in Arkansas. This ad states that the staffing for patient direct care exceeds the state and federal minimums. State law requires 2.8 hours of direct care staffing per day for each resident and it appears that many homes are staffing at 3.32 hours of direct care per day as stated. However, this ad states the federal preferred minimum is 3.0 hours of direct care per day, while in fact CMS (Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services) places the preferred minimum staffing hours at 4.1 (not 3.0). 4.1 hours is a MINIMUM below which residents will experience bad outcomes.

So I got to thinking "how else is the public being misled?"

A large ad appearing in a local newspaper each week congratulates a nursing home for an excellent annual certification. It gives the impression that an outside organization is giving the praise when, in fact, it is the Management Corporation that owns and operates the home.

Another nursing home advertises itself as the most highly touted nursing and rehab center in the state citing an award for its wound protocol received from Arkansas Foundation for Medical Care (AFMC). Indeed this home did receive an award for its improvement in preventing and healing pressure sores after volunteering to work in a federally sponsored program with AFMC, but the award was only for the work they did in improving their wound care.

Another ad appearing in a major newspaper indicates Certified Nursing Aides (CNA's) are extremely well trained with continual training offered to them. CNA's are required to have 75 hours of training – both classroom and clinical combined. They are then required to have one hour a month of in-service training. The many, many thousands of hours of training referred to in the advertisement are offered, for the most part, to nurses and administrators, but usually not required. Though both administrators and licensed nurses are required to do ongoing education each year, to imply they participate in all of the training itemized in the ad is misleading.

I know the monthly calendars at most nursing homes are filled with wonderful activities. Remember that these only help the resident if they actually happen and the residents are encouraged to attend. Keep your eyes and ears open, ask questions and remember, things are not always what they seem.

Attorney General Mike Beebe—AANHR's July Speaker

By Martha Blount

Arkansas' chief legal authority concerning citizens' privileges since January 2002, Attorney General Mike Beebe spoke to AANHR members in July. He compared his position to that of being a "protector" for those who are most vulnerable. His realm of influence includes among other things: nursing home residents, children and the internet, environmental issues, and criminal activity.

What's going on in the Attorney General's office relative to nursing home care? When Beebe took over he created a stand-alone department to address abuse and fraud of the elderly. This department is as large as ever. It addressed 3849 complaints in 2003 with less than 300 confirmed as founded complaints. Nearly 3750 of these were forwarded from OLTC. Thus far in 2004, 2241 complaints have been addressed at the AG's office with ninety-eight percent (2192) originating from OLTC.

Arkansas' Medicaid Fraud Unit is essentially the same size as in the previous administration, according to Beebe. The OLTC is required by law to report suspected criminal abuse. Currently, there are eleven criminal cases pending involving nursing home residents with six of those being handled by Attorney General office staff. Various other cases have been settled involving restitution. This restitution money is reentered into the Medicaid/Medicare system and thus attracts more dollars for health care when compounded with the federal monies.

An audience member requested that Attorney General Beebe address the issue of the legality of arbitration clauses in nursing home resident's contracts for care. The possibility of issuing a consumer alert to warn citizens about the dangers of signing arbitration clauses in nursing home contracts was posed. Beebe's response was that " the Attorney General's office theoretically represents several facets of health care including nursing home owners, as well as medical and nursing schools, but do not have contact with "teaching" elements so it is not part of the office's agenda to educate the public unless/until some danger is present that must be remedied."

Attorney General Beebe encouraged AANHR to promote good nursing homes via good publicity which would work as positive reinforcement to encourage bad nursing home administrations to clean up their acts. He suggested such strategies as promoting good nursing homes in publications such as Aging Arkansas.

Asked for an opinion on the reported 103 nursing homes who have dropped liability coverage, Beebe mused that their viability might be jeopardized. He suggested the feasibility of an insurance pool or perhaps legislating a requirement for liability insurance. Currently, liability insurance coverage for nursing homes is not mandated by the federal government. However, he warned that more money spent for insurance results in less money available for care needs. (Continued on page 4).

Certificates of Insurance and Arbitration Clauses

By Larry Wakefield

Most of the readers of the AANHR Newsletter have loved ones in Nursing Homes or have had. You are familiar with all of the documents that must be read and/or signed at the time of enrollment for residency. If anyone ever has any questions about the admittance forms, they should seek the advice of an attorney, or at least the advice of someone familiar with the forms. I suggest you ask to take the form or forms in question home for 48 hours to study or to show to your attorney before admittance of your loved one.

Winston Churchill said: "Nothing is as consistent as change". A recent survey revealed that 103 Nursing Homes in Arkansas were not insured. A few days before your resident is admitted to the nursing home you should request Certificates of Insurance because you would wish to have recourse in the event of a resident's injury or death arising out of abuse or negligence. This will take a few days because the Nursing Home will have to ask it's agent or broker to secure the Certificates from the insurer's home office. The Certificates are signed by a home office executive, and give the policy numbers, the effective dates, the expiration dates, and limits of coverage, and pertinent endorsements. This is the best way to determine that you will have something to recover, if recovery is necessary.

Speaking of signing a lot of documents at time of admission, some nursing homes now ask those seeking admission to sign an Arbitration Clause. I recommend that you not sign it. A NURSING HOME CANNOT LEGALLY DENY A PERSON WITH MEDICARE OR MEDICAID ADMISSION TO A NURSING HOME BECAUSE OF REFUSAL TO SIGN THE ARBITRATION AGREEMENT. If you were to sign an Arbitration contract, you would be agreeing to take disputes to an Arbitrator. The Arbitrator's ruling is final. You cannot appeal. You lose your right to TAKE LEGAL ACTION.

We hope the up-coming session will pass legislation declaring it illegal to deny admission to private pay residents who do not wish to sign an Arbitration Clause.

Questioned about the Permit of Approval process, Beebe reminded audience members that the POA system was set up for a purpose: to restrict proliferation of services to the point that those services are no longer cost effective. However, one AANHR member pointed out the downside of Permit of Approval process might include the stifling of competition among homes which might contribute to lax, inadequate care. There was also mention of investigating the make up of the Permit board.

Attorney General Beebe praised AANHR for its dedication and effort on behalf of Arkansas' elderly infirm citizens and encouraged them to continue their advocacy and offered his office's assistance when needed.

Arkansas Advocates for Nursing Home Residents

In celebration of Residents' Rights week (October 3-9), we hope you'll attend our rally on Monday, October 4. During the week of October 3-9, visit your friends in long-term care facilities. Discuss their rights with them: right to adequate care, clean and safe environment, free to complain without retribution. Do you think their rights are being honored? If not, contact the ombudsman for that area. The ombudsman's name and number should be posted conspicuously in the home. If the situation does not improve, contact AANHR.

Tom Taggart and his sister, Kathryn, in 1998

Tom Taggart, Honorary Board Member of AANHR Board

Tom Taggart, a retiree from maintenance for the city of Little Rock, is a charter member of AANHR. When he attended the first meeting in October 1995, both his wife and sister were nursing home residents, and he was interested in getting improved care for his loved ones. About six months later, his beloved wife died. He continued overseeing the care for his sister, Kathryn, for many years. He attended every AANHR meeting until a few years ago when his health failed shortly after Kathryn died.

Many AANHR members will never forget Tom Taggart and we miss seeing him. He faithfully "passed the hat" at our meetings, and made sure everyone had a chance to contribute to expenses. He, himself, made a very generous contribution every month, both monetary and otherwise – never for show! We're telling on him now.

We observed his love and faithfulness to his sister, Kathryn, knowing he visited her two or three times daily at the nursing home. He assisted her with meals and kept a close watch on her. Whenever he thought she was not getting the care due her, he went through the proper protocol to get that care. He consistently had the courage to stand up for her rights.

Tom Taggart will always be our hero. We "take our hat off to him" and are so glad he accepted our invitation to be an honorary board member.

A Happy, Comfortable Home for Jordan

Past AANHR Newsletters have recommended Greenhurst Nursing Center in Charleston, Arkansas as a good nursing home. Recently Martha Deaver suggested Greenhurst as a possible solution to finding good care in a nursing home for "Jordan" to his mother. This, after some unhappy experiences for Jordan and his family. Even though Greenhurst Nursing Center is a two-hour drive for his family, they opted to place Jordan there when they were told there was an available bed. The family, which includes a teenager and three grown children, now rent an apartment near the nursing home so they can see Jordan weekly. The "thank you" letter below was too good not to share. This should be the normal experience for skilled care nursing home residents, rather than the exception!

To Martha Deaver:

This email is late on my part. I've been so overjoyed, overwhelmed, and relaxed that I haven't done much of my usual activities. I wish I could tell you every detail of how the move-in at Greenhurst went, how it came about, and the subsequent messages from Kriss and staff about how Jordan is doing. I'm walking on air, and so is my husband. We've looked at each other in the evening and said, "Can this be true? Can we sit here and not be sad/fearful/worried/guilty about Jordan? Can we live our lives without having sadness overtake us so frequently?" This is going to take some getting used to. Suffice to say, Jordan's move into Greenhurst went smoothly, everyone was so welcoming, the updates from Kriss/staff have been encouraging, and I think that a group of people besides our family knows the value of Jordan, understands the intricacies of his care, and even loves him unconditionally!

I have you to thank for steering me in the right direction. You hung in there daily (and sometimes many times/day), encouraging me to seek something better without being pushy. You were so very supportive and offered, at every step, just what I needed to continue my search. I have no idea how you kept your opinions to yourself during some of our conversations! You led me in very thoughtful ways. My husband said the other night, "You know, we owe Martha Deaver a lot for helping us find Greenhurst." So, we are both in agreement, you were instrumental in helping us find a good place for Jordan, and in being able to have some peaceful times as a family....

Thank you, Martha, for all you did to help us find a comfortable home for Jordan. You made the hugest impact on our entire family, especially Jordan.

Connie
